MANSON ELEMENTARY PRESENTS "GENIUS" PROJECTS

The Genius Hour Project is a time for students to discover, learn, and share about their passions and interests. Students were tasked with developing a guiding question to be answered, research about this topic, and then create something to share their learning with others. This model comes from Google, as they give their employees 20% of their day to work on projects they are passionate about within the company, and some schools have started to implement this model as well. Fifth graders did an excellent job in sharing their learning during our Genius Hour Exhibit with posters, PowerPoints, iMovies, and other demonstrations!
